BILINGUAL, HEARING AND SPEECH IMPAIRED COURT INTERPRETER ACT (H.R. 10228)

Deaf people around the United States are waiting eagerly for the outcome of Congressional hearings on a bill that would provide for qualified interpreters for hearing impaired persons in federal court proceedings initiated by the U.S. government. The hearings on the Bilingual, Hearing and Speech Impaired Court Interpreter Act were held on August 2 and 3 in the Rayburn Office Building.

Mervin Garretson, representing the NAD, Sy DuBow, representing the NCLD, and Carl Kirchner, representing the RID, presented testimony, as a panel, to the Committee, chaired by Congressman Don Edwards of California, in support of the bill. The panel explained the function of the interpreter and the legal reasons for their use. At the conclusion of their testimony the panel answered questions from the Committee.

The bill provides for use of interpreters in a case brought by the federal government and for a master list of qualified interpreters to be on record with the court in order to avoid the problems of drafting the services of a relative or a policeman who may know only a few basic signs. Passage of the bill would serve as a model for states where interpreters are needed in state court proceedings. While Maryland and Virginia have interpreter in court laws, the District of Columbia does not.

The bill is still in the Committee and action is not expected before the summer recess.

ON THE GREEN is published each week by the Office of Alumni and Public Relations for the faculty and staff of Gallaudet College.
